Biopsy and sex determination by PCR of IVF bovine embryos

Z Macháty, A Páldi, T Csáki, Z Varga, I Kiss, Z Bárándi and G Vajta

Institute for Animal Sciences, Agricultural Biotechnology Center, Gödöllő, POB 170, H-2101, Hungary

Correspondence should be addressed to Z Macháty who is now at Department of Animal Sciences, Purdue University, West Lafayette, IN 47907, USA; Email: zmachaty@purdue.edu

Reproduction (2011) 142 607

The authors and journal apologize for an error in the above paper, which appeared in Journal of Reproduction and Fertility volume 98 part 2, pages 467–470. The size of the Y chromosome-specific amplification product is 173 base pairs, not 301 base pairs as published.